

Ronny Cox Band

Saturday, July 9th 7:30 - 9:30

Ronny Cox, will be the "star" performer at this Concert. Accompanying him will be the remarkable accordion player / pianist Radoslav Lorković ("Rad") and the terrific T Bruce Bower, acoustic guitarist, fiddler, and back-up singer.

With a career that spans over a hundred and twenty-five films and television shows, Ronny Cox — one of the nicest guys you will ever meet — is often ironically identified with the villains he has played in movies. His first time acting in front of a camera was as the guitarist in the famous 'dueling banjos' scene in "Deliverance". The truth is, Ronny has been writing songs and telling stories for over four decades. Only in the last ten years has the world seen him evolve from being an 'actor who sings' into knowing him as a 'singer who happens to have a pretty fair career acting'.

"By the second song I had forgotten all about 'Dueling Banjos' and was wrapped up in what was coming from his mellow baritone voice..."

"I enjoy all kinds of music and I try to bring that eclectic approach to the music I play," Ronny says. "I'm interested in weaving a tapestry of songs and stories with an over-all arc that eventually comes together and tells us something about 'the human condition'. I know that sounds kinda pompous . . . but that's what I'm trying to do, . . . and to have a few laughs along the way."

When performing live, Ronny likes to play with the lights up. Instead of having a spotlight shining on him, staring into darkness, he prefers to see listeners' faces. "The closer I am to the audience the more it feels like a shared experience I want my shows to feel like it used to — sitting around the front porch or the kitchen table sharing music with family and friends."
